

The Importance of Premium Tax Credits: Affording Health Insurance in Michigan

Currently, nearly 20 million people across the United States get help paying for their health coverage through premium tax credits (also known as advance premium tax credits, or APTCs), which they can use to purchase a plan through the health insurance marketplaces. These tax credits are a lifeline for people who would otherwise not be able to afford their health coverage or access health care. But if Congress does not act, this assistance will be cut, and millions of people will face losing their health insurance, delaying or skipping needed health care, or taking on medical debt they cannot afford.

APTCs in America

Today, people seeking to purchase health insurance may qualify for APTCs if their household income is at least $14,580 for an individual or $30,000 for a family of four, they buy a plan offered on healthcare.gov or a state marketplace, and they do not have other options for affordable health coverage.¹ In light of the ongoing U.S. health care affordability crisis, and particularly in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic, Congress has acted to bolster the amount of assistance available to people in recent years, increasing the premium tax credit amounts under the American Rescue Plan Act and extending those enhancements under the Inflation Reduction Act. These actions have saved individuals and families money in insurance premiums and enabled many to cut their deductibles in half.² But those enhancements are set to expire at the end of 2025, leaving many Americans at risk for significant losses.

IMPACT ON MICHIGAN FAMILIES

In 2024, 374,000 Michiganians receive advance premium tax credits.³ The average monthly premium cost for marketplace plans is $518, but after APTCs, the average monthly premium is $137.*

- » The amount that people currently pay for premiums varies by age and income, but premiums for most families and individuals will increase significantly if the enhanced premium tax credits are allowed to expire.⁴
- » Single individuals in their mid-40s making $30,000 would see their premiums increase by $1,350 per year.
- » Couples in their early 60s earning $80,000 would see their premiums increase by about $12,600 per year.

* "2024 Marketplace Open Enrollment." The average monthly premium after APTCs solely among consumers receiving APTCs is even lower — $98.

HOW TAX CREDITS HELP REAL PEOPLE: AHMED'S STORY

Ahmed⁵, a 28-year-old Middle Eastern immigrant working at a convenience store, has relied on marketplace health insurance for the past four years. Previously, Ahmed paid over $110 monthly for his plan. Following Congressional action to increase premium tax credits, Ahmed was able to switch to a more comprehensive and affordable plan, reducing his monthly payment to just $27.

Recently, Ahmed faced an unexpected medical emergency, resulting in an $8,000 bill. Thanks to his marketplace plan, his out-of-pocket expense was reduced to $3,200, which he is able to manage through monthly installments. This financial relief allowed Ahmed to focus on his recovery without the burden of insurmountable medical debt.

Now healthy, Ahmed can afford regular visits to his primary care physician for preventative care, ensuring his ongoing well-being. Ahmed's experience underscores the critical importance of premium tax credits in making healthcare accessible and affordable for individuals like him.

CALL TO ACTION

Families from coast to coast cannot be left wondering if this critical assistance will be available to them the next time they need to renew their health insurance.

CONGRESS MUST ACT QUICKLY TO PERMANENTLY EXTEND APTC ENHANCEMENTS.
